Coincidences abound when Justin and his mum both decide to enrol for the same home study course; 'How To Survive Your Impossible Family ...' Before BfK is inundated with letters of application perhaps a word of warning - it could be life threatening. Death by laughter is very painful around the ribs. One of the funniest books I've read for some time, it's written from Mellie (Mum) and Justin's alternative points of view, plus a postscript from Dad. The family are totally crazy and yet there are elements of the frighteningly familiar. One big surprise is the touchingly gentle meeting of Mum and Justin at the end, an unusual resolution that stops the fun dead in its track, with the comment by Dad bringing us safely back to reality.
