The eagerly awaited follow-up to Everybody Else Does! Why Can't I? shows no sign of the successful mother/daughter diary format wearing thin. This time, Jenny's parents take the family to Canada for four months, separating Jenny from her friend, her A-level studies and her beloved George. Consolation presents itself in the form of improbably hunky Dirk who, predictably, proves himself thoroughly unworthy. This third book in the Coppard trilogy depicts a Jenny more concerned with adult issues but it's just as readable and relevant to young adults as the other two.
